

After the Iron curtain: poor parenting and state intervention in cross-cultural perspective

A one-day workshop at the Scott Polar Research Institute, University of Cambridge

Wednesday, 10th June, 10-4.30pm

Programme

Registration (tea and coffee available) 9.30-10.00

Welcome and introduction: 10.00-10.10

Charlotte Faircloth, Elena Khlinovskaya Rockhill, and Piers Vitebsky

Panel 1: Setting the scene 10.10-11.15

Charlotte Faircloth, Contextualizing the 'new parenting culture'

Elena Khlinovskaya Rockhill, On the difficulty of defining marginality in the (post)-Soviet context

Discussant: Hugh Cunningham

Break (tea and coffee available) 11.15-11.45

Panel 2: Poor parenting in UK context 11.45- 13.00

Val Gillies, Parenting and the 'moral economy of hope'

Tracey Jensen, "Hardworking People and Their Families": tracking the 'working' and the 'workless' family across the Supernanny State

Discussant: Frank Furedi

Lunch (Provided) 13.00 -14.00

Panel 3: Making connections 14.00-15.15

Svetlana Stephenson, “They should respect the family, the society and the state”. Russian practitioners’ perceptions of youth dislocation.

Jan Macvarish, Neuroparenting and reconstitution of parental love

Discussant: Paula Pustulka

Break (tea and coffee available) 15.15-15.45

Concluding discussion 15.45-16.30

Discussant: Molly Ladd-Taylor