

Sponsored by the Faculty of Humanities and the School of European Culture and Languages.

Registration is free.

login2011@kent.ac.uk
<http://blogs.kent.ac.uk/skepsi/events/login/>

Skepsi

skepsi@kent.ac.uk
<http://blogs.kent.ac.uk/skepsi/>

University of
Kent

Log In

Making Sense of Social Networks

Skepsi's Fourth Annual Multi-disciplinary Conference

Friday, 27 May 2011

Keynes Lecture Theatre 2, 9am

University of
Kent

9am-9.50am Welcome and Registration

9.50am-10am Introduction (Skepsi Editorial Board)

10am-11am

Online Challenges: Facing and Thinking

Enrico Schiro (University of Rome-La Sapienza)
Archaeology of Computer Systems and Multidisciplinary Epistemology: Hypothesis for a Future Historiography

Crispin Lee (University of Kent)
Merleau-Ponty and Serres: Twittering Demons?

11am-11.30am Coffee Break

11.30am-12.30am

Online Identities: New Social Practices and Conceptions of the Self

Jake T. Lussier (University of Notre Dame, U.S.A.)
Privacy and Practices

Matt Lee (University of Greenwich)
Finding a Voice: Opening a new Future for the Avatar

12.30am-2pm Lunch

2pm-3pm

Online Activisms and (Self-)Assertions: the Lobbying Possibilities offered by Virtual Communities and the Web Interface

Ilaria Masenga (University of Exeter)
Between Readership and Fandom: Studying Readers' Responses through Online Literary Appreciation Groups

Maria Morelli (University of Kent)
Reshaping Feminism through the Net: Towards the Raise of Cyber-Feminism?

3pm-3.30pm Coffee Break

3.30pm-4.30pm

Online Revolutions: New Forms of Social and Political Networking

Jacob T. Bradsher (University of Kent)
Commons and Enclosures: Genres of Revolutionary Narrative in Online Communities

Siavush Randjbar-Daemi (Royal Holloway, University of London)
The Iranian Protest of 2009 and Social Media: The Intersection of Technology and Political Culture

4.30pm

Final Remarks and Wine Reception